On the whole, Sir, I not only subscribed to the definition, winch, in your eighth number, you give of Government, that it is a mound, which the Divinity of human Reason, has flung on the enormity of human Violence, --but, persuaded that a lofty, and firm-set throne--is the best security for public freedom, I heartily wished Mildworth had been King, instead of Stadholder; and entrusted with that social sceptre called the hammer, --so conducive to good order, in some convivial meetings. The next day Mildworth called upon me, bringing a pamphlet in his pocket, which he recommended to my attention. Occupied at the moment, in writing you this letter, 1 hastened to communicate my system to my friend; who, though he smiled at its singularity, did not controvert its truth; but even furnished me with means of rendering the theory more complete. Your analogies, said he, will bear to be detailed, without the slightest deviation from the truth. These latent tyrannies pervade familiar life; and are continually found lurking, beneath every surface of equality. What is the Valetudinarian, who terms peevishness ill health, and subdues us to his whims, with the aid of our own pity? What the foward infant, that squalls us into compliance with its helpless commands? or the mother, who, declaring herself a slave to her children, lashes them into silence, without investigating their wants? What is Bess Flippant, when checking the remark that has half issued from...
